OUR FUTURE

This is a day of congratulations... a time for the rewarding of those who deserve it. They have finished a job. It is also their Commencement... young graduates must survey their individual and personal futures. It is beginning time for each. Unless they have learned well to do their duty instead of demanding their rights... unless they are qualified to take prosperity without pride, and adversity without anguish... they are unprepared for the future God has for them. This is a glad time, but it is also a most frightful, serious occasion. Eternal vigilance is the demand made by the world on those reaching this commencement hour. Today the pattern is formed, the die is cast. May every graduate from something-to-something in America, remember the words of St. Paul, who said: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any praise, think on these things. Those things which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me, do; and the God of peace shall be with you," through Your Future.

You In The Church
The Church is You
— form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.

Division winners with the highest scores in their categories become finalists and go with both parents to the National Competition at the All-Star Game, and to the Baseball Hall of Fame.

Paneling Improves

Poor Room Shape

Hung up with high ceilings? To make a room seem longer, wider and less boxy, install wood paneling horizontally.

Either flush joint or V-joint paneling will change the visual dimensions of an awkwardly shaped room, but V-joint will have more effect, since the horizontal lines will be more apparent.

The principle works both ways. If a room needs height, install the paneling vertically.

Hemlock and red cedar are favorite choices for interior paneling. Either is distinctive.

Extra Ham Per Hog

Homemakers today purchase pork from leaner hogs. The amount of ham and loin in hogs has increased by 23.5 percent, the equivalent of an extra ham for every hog. There's a more uniform year-around supply because with better feed utilization, it takes less time to get hogs to market.

SHARON McLERRAN
Miss McLerran
Receives Scholarship

Attitude, scholarship, character, and participation in activities describe the 1970-71 recipient of the Earl Williams Memorial scholarship.

It was presented to Miss Sharon M. McLerran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barney McLerran of Route 1, Cameron, on May 29 at the Temple Junior College commencement exercises which took place in the First Methodist Church of Temple.

The scholarship is sponsored by the College Council in memory of its originator, the late Earl Williams, who was head of the TJC social science department for many years.

A Day

Back in the patrol car a voice on the radio was telling excitedly about a bank robbery that had been reported in San Antonio. One of the three hold-up men was described as having a full beard and wearing a white shirt. They had made their getaway in a car.

Wright said: "Hey, that fellow I just gave the ticket to -- that fits his description. And he was sure nervous." He called the Austin station and asked for the license number of the robbers' car in San Antonio.

When the answer came back after a little delay, the number was almost the same as the Chevy's license. Only one letter was different.

"If I've let a bank robber get by me --" Wright said, then shook his head. "Oh, he just couldn't have gotten this far in such a short time."

And that was the way it turned out to be. Soon afterwards a report said the getaway car had been found abandoned in San Antonio. It was a Buick, not a Chevy.

ARMS STANDARD

Because highway patrolmen come in contact with all types, the law breakers as well as the law abiding, they are armed while on duty. They carry a .357 magnum in the holster on their pistol belt. A blackjack and policeman's nightstick are standard equipment in the patrol car. These are sensible precautions, as statistics show. Last year three highway patrolmen were killed and more than fifty were injured by drivers resisting arrest.

The remainder of that afternoon was strictly routine, with one warning ticket issued. So when Wright dropped me off at the courthouse square where we started, the patrol car's speedometer showed 100 miles added to it, but there was not much in the way of excitement to show for the afternoon's work. Which of course is the way it should be.

Not that Milton Wright hasn't had his share of excitement while on the job. He was on duty that 22nd of November, 1963, in Dallas, driving one of the cars in the motorcade in which President Kennedy was riding.

"All of the cars were driven by highway patrolmen," he explained. "We were wearing civilian clothes, not in uniform."

The car he was driving, he recalls, was only two or three cars behind President Kennedy's convertible. He had four people in it -- Dallas Mayor Earl Cabell and his wife, and a Congressman, Jake Pickle of Austin, he believes, and his wife.

About the number of shots that were fired, he's positive. "I know I heard three shots," he says.

When the order to head for Parkland Hospital came a moment later, Wright says he joined the rest of the motorcade. It speeded up to 115 miles an hour, which was the top speed for the motorcycle escort.

"At the hospital I helped take both President Kennedy and Governor Connally out of the car and lift them on stretchers. We had to get Connally out first; he was in a seat in front of Kennedy."

"Connally thought he was dying. 'They've got me, boys,' he said several times. 'They've got me.'"

Wright remained on duty the rest of the day, he recalls, helping to guard the hospital and the state and national officials there.

A day like that comes only once in a highway patrolman's career, of course -- if at all. Mostly its routine. But that's important, too. Protecting the motoring public and keeping the highways safe. . . . But that is why it is called the Department of Public Safety.

High TV Set Late Relaxer

Watching the late-late show on TV is relaxing, if you can do it comfortably in bed. The trouble is, most TV sets are too low to let you lie down and still see the screen.

If there's an unused corner in the bedroom, you can install a portable TV at any height on built-in shelving.

Use heavy duty standards and braces, because of the weight of even a small set. Place the antenna beside it or on the shelf below and let it extend all the way to the ceiling. With a remote control switch, you can change programs and turn them off without getting up.

The lower shelves can be used for books, an alarm clock or music equipment. Bottom sections are useful when enclosed for clothes hampers or accessories storage.

For easy working, make shelves of western lumber.

SCS Offers Advice On Waterways

Farmers and ranchers should devote attention to the condition of their waterways, advises the Soil and Water Conservation Service.

Maintenance work needed, fertilization and spot sodding should be given attention on existing waterways.

Recent rains make it favorable for fertilizing waterway grass. Areas of existing waterways that are shaped, sodded and fertilized should make good growth and over through the growing season.

Waterways with erosive gulches or outlet ends could delay terracing until needed repairs are made. Waterways maintained now can make it possible to construct terraces at an earlier date.

Sodding shaped areas in an existing waterway should be chunk sodded when possible. A good deep seedbed should be prepared before planting the grass, if you are sodding sprigs or chunk sodding.

Information and assistance is available on needed maintenance and waterway problems through your local Soil Conservation Service.

THE FOOD DOLLAR

Farmers received an average of 41 cents out of each $1 spent for U.S. farm produced food in 1969. This was about 2 cents more than in 1957-59, but 9 cents less than in 1947-49. The farmer's share of the consumer's dollar varies widely among products. It is smaller for a highly serviced product such as bread than for an unprocessed product such as eggs. When $1 was spent in 1969 at the grocery store, 41 cents went for products and 59 cents for marketing service.

By Vern Sanford

Tide tables are invaluable to the salt water fisherman. Sunrise and sunset times are equally important to the hunter.

Most newspapers every day list this information in their weather boxes.

This is handy for the outdoorsman who plans to go fishing or hunting on a paper's date of issue. But what about the outdoorsman who wants to plan weeks, maybe even months ahead?

He can still get the information from the nearest U.S. Weather Bureau. But this takes time.

However, for an investment of $2 the outdoorsman can get all this information in book form covering the entire 12 months period.

The book is TIDE TABLES, and it's published by the U.S. Department of Commerce. Actually there are four separate books—European waters, North and South America east coast, North and South America west coast and Pacific and Indian Oceans.

Since you're living in Texas, you'll want the book on North and South America east coast waters.

TIDE TABLES can be ordered through most book stores or by writing direct to the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

Service in Washington, D. C. TIDE TABLES lists high and low water times for every day in the year. Behind each time listing is the tide height in feet in relation to mean low water.

Base points are taken all along the North and South America east coasts. For Texas the base point is Galveston. For other points on the Texas coast various corrections must be made by either adding or subtracting time. This, too, is covered in the book.

While tides have little influence on offshore fishing, they are of the utmost importance when it comes to surf or bay fishing. Knowing in advance the tide times and water heights will enable you to map your fishing trip intelligently.

With game laws being more strictly enforced every year, it's important to know exact sunrise and sunset hours and minutes in order to keep from running afoul of the law.

The book isn't hard to follow. Times are listed on the military system of 1 through 24. If you've had any military training at all, you'll know, for example, that a time listed in the book as 1430 is nothing more than 2:30 p.m. (2 hours and 30 minutes past 12:00 noon). Making corrections for areas listed between base points involves nothing more than simple arithmetic—addition or subtraction.

It's also a fine book for planning those out of Texas vacation fishing trips. You can find east coast tide tables all the way from Argentina, Newfoundland, to Punta Loyola on the southern tip of Argentina in South America.

In using this book one point must be taken into consideration. Remember all the predictions listed are made for constant and ideal weather conditions. Strong sustained winds influence tides by making them either higher or lower than the predicted height. The winds, however, do not influence the times of high and low tides, but only the height of the water.

Size-wise the book—10 inches by seven inches—and ¾ of an inch thick—will fit neatly in your tackle box.

This book isn't something entirely new. The Coast and Geodetic Survey has been publishing TIDE TABLES since 1853. They are intended for the use of the mariner, but easily can be adapted to benefit your fishing and hunting.

CURTIS BARRON ON KING

CALF ROPING 1945

If you are looking for a sport that is fast and furious then try calf roping. The competition in this sport is keen and you have to work to be a winner. Pictured above is Curtis Barron of Rt. 3, Cameron (Marlow community). Curtis is mounted on King, a horse bred on the great King Ranch in south Texas. This picture was made in San Angelo, Texas in 1945 and shows Curtis winning a match roping contest. His average time on 6 calves in this contest was 14 seconds. Curtis spent many years on the rodeo circuit, roping in rodeos in Colorado, New Mexico, Louisiana, Arkansas and his native Texas. Curtis and his wife Jewel now live on their little spread in the Marlow community. Curtis still trains horses and is presently working with youngsters who like to rope. Curtis also makes fine custom saddles for cowboys all over the state. Photo Courtesy Curtis Barron-

Provision of NHA Aids Home Buyers

Many families are eligible to buy a new three or four bedroom home with a down payment of only $200.00, but are not taking advantage of this opportunity because they are not aware of the provisions of Section 235 of the National Housing Act.

"Financial help is available to enable low income families to buy their own home," according to Tom Yager, president of the Lumbermen's Association of Texas, "but many are not familiar with this program. To get complete details on the provisions of this section of the National Housing Act," Yager advised, "see your local lumber dealer."
